

I am writing to comment on the proposed preference of LPFM to FM translator services. I currently listen to KLOVE, which uses the translator services and may be at risk of losing their broadcast streams.

KLOVE is a vital part of my families life. We are strengthened and encouraged by the music and ministry. I have a teenage son, who at any moment is on the brink of becoming a statistic of drug use, violence, negative peer pressure or any number of things. The reinforcements of this station I strongly believe help him stay focused on the living an upright life. This message is also extended to his friends. It is vital for this community to have a choice of positive, healthy and encouraging music.

The ministry is positively impacting lives everyday. From preventing suicides to providing support in times of despair. This community has a light, and that light is KLOVE.

Please consider KLOVE and other small stations that may be serving their local communities in your upcoming decision. Wide area broadcasts are great and serve one purpose, but there is also a very vital purpose and service these local stations fill.

Thanks you for the opportunity to comment.
